

BEERS

Beer has long been a quiet companion to conversation. Shared across tables, passed between friends, and raised in small celebrations, it turns ordinary moments into something warmer. From neighborhood bars to backyard gatherings, a simple glass of beer often becomes the reason people linger, talk longer, and enjoy being together. La Chouffe has become a familiar bottle on shared tables. Its bright, slightly spicy character suits long evenings, where stories stretch, glasses refill, and friends stay just a little longer. For many Bulgarians, Zagorka Retro feels like home in a glass. It's refreshing and comforting, with a retro character that brings a sense of nostalgia, reminding people of familiar summers

THE BARRIER

Pavel Vejinov

“Perhaps she had deliberately folded her wings. Or perhaps, suddenly and even to herself, she had lost her strength and flown into the abyss. But what sense is there in searching for guilt or trying to justify myself? All of this concerned only my own person. And Dorothea? No power in the world could bring back to life the only human being who had once flown. No matter where. No matter how.”
